

Our Hirosho School Life!

Farewell Seniors!

The third year students took the final exams of their high school careers in the first week of February. After their exams, there was a day where all of the teachers and clubs said their farewells to the soon to be graduates. Each homeroom teacher made a special farewell video for the school to watch. Following the farewell ceremony, the seniors did not have to come back to school until the end of the month. When they returned, they received special awards for their academic performance and began preparing for graduation on March 1st.

Foreign Visitors

On February 13th Hirosho had people visit from a program called JICA. The program brought people from many countries in Central America to Hirosho. They didn't speak Japanese. Many of them only spoke Spanish. The students interacted with the visitors during many different activities. The activities included: teaching the visitors how to write calligraphy on a Japanese foldable fan, eating a Japanese lunch, learning about the countries from which the visitors came, teaching the visitors about the Hirosho Department Store, and showing them the abacus club.

Many of the students got a chance to interact directly with the visitors. Some of the second year students taught the visitors how to fold origami. After the experience, many of the students talked about how fun it was to try communicating with people who don't speak Japanese. I was very encouraging for most of the students and teachers to see how successfully the students were able to communicate.

Final Exams

The first and second year students have been cramming their minds full of information since the fun farewell ceremony. The final exams for this school year began on the 25th and will continue into March. All of the students have been working hard to remember everything they have learned throughout the term.
